Program Information

This page is intended for college transfer students and graduates ONLY. High school students MUST contact the institution directly for information about the guaranteed freshman-entry program. Do not apply using PTCAS.

Program Description	The Emory & Henry College Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) program is a three-year, nine semester, 119-credit hour program. The coursework is organized into curricular themes, with the emphasis in the first year on foundations of clinical sciences, introductory clinical skills, and applied clinical sciences. The coursework in the second and third years emphasize advanced clinical sciences and skills, and critical inquiry courses necessary to prepare knowledgeable and competent physical therapists. Threaded throughout the curriculum are courses on various professional issues, learning experiences and community engagement. The clinical education components of the program, include five part-time clinical immersions (occurring in semesters 2-6) and three full-time clinical internships (occurring in semesters 7-9). These clinical education components allow students to practice the profession at an entry level in various clinical settings under the supervision of licensed and experienced physical therapists.
